Said a witty man once, "You can ust your happiness with a woman who ughs," and though the assertion may em like a sweeping one, founded on a seem like a sweeping one, founded or a very airy basis, yet there is much more truth in it than appears on the surface. An honest laugh is the enemy of subterfuge, and the woman who can see the ridiculous side of the annoying happenings of everyday life will not become the dismal, tiresome companion that the pessimistic individual is so apt to prove. Somehow one feels instinctively that they can trust a person who has laughing eyes, whose mouth is ever ready to dimple into smiles and whose disposition tends to brightness rather than depression.

Loud, meaningless laughter is as had as the cackling giggle emanating from a challow mind and is an evidence of lack of breeding, but the spontaneous low, happy little laugh, teeming with enjoyment of the moment and bucked by a nature pure and loveable is a charm in woman as attractive as a lovely face or ceautiful form.

The baroness is a great traveler as well as a writer, and spent litteen years in those countries, studying the people and their history. As a result, she has published a series of valuable travels and historical works. The governments of all the countries she visited showered attentions on her, and every means in their power was placed within her reach to enable her to pursue her historical researches. Native Courtesy of Women.

Lesiyard, the great traveler, mys that smong all nations women adorn themseives more than men, but that when ever found they are the same kind, civil, humane and tender beings, inclined to be chearful, timorous and modest. He has found the women on the plains of inhospitable Denmark through honest Sweden, from Lapland, churlish Finland and unprincipled Russia more heapitable and generous than men, full of courtesy, fond of excist, but industrians, economical and ingenious. And whenever the traveler, in the language whenever the traveler in the language of decency and friendship, has asked a question of any woman, criticed or savage, he has always received a decast and friendly named, while with men it a often otherwise.

English Women in Politics.

During the recent elections English women have been more actively engaged than ever in political work. They have descended into the arena of practical politics, as one writer has said, and are endeavoring to asserp it clean with the brooms of their intelligence. Whenever meetings have been held they have aphiterature a profession. She lives alone, attended by two servants, at a pretty little house in West Kensington, where she has a remarkable collection of "pets" dogs, birds and flowers. Miss Marryat is reputed to be very kind to young author of whom she has agood number among er friends. She is ever ready to useus a "character" or a plot with She has even been known to help the lame dog over the stile by writing a chapter in a novel, which, somehow or other, the author found insuperable difficulty in writing.

Among the presents received by the Pope on the occasion of his jubilee was a golden cross set in diamonds, the gift of her majesty the empress of Austria. The empress is a devout catholic, and since the tragic death of her only son three years ago has sought her chief consolation in the practices of her faith. His holiness was delighted with her majesty's remembrance, which was among the most valuable gifts from individuals.

The widow of General Sheridan went to the White House not long ago to pay her respects to the president. Mr. Cleve-land suggested that she might like to land. This was cheerfully assented to by Mrs. Sheridan, and the president per-sonally conducted her to the private portion of the executive mansion, not trusting the delicate mission to any of the attaches of the household.

Countess Anna Hahn, the sister-in-law of the author, Countess Ida Hahn, entered a convent near Meran, Italy, recently with the intention of becoming a nua. The countess, who belongs by marriage to one of the greatest families in Germany, is 67 years old. She has large estates in Holstein in her own name, which will probably go to the church.

The new press laws for the mikado's empire prohibit women from becoming publishers or editors, as "the discharge of such work by females is neither becoming nor desirable." The framers of the laws are certainly looking far into the future, for as yet Japanese damsels have given no sign of emulating their western sisters in newspaper work.

Princess Margaret of Prussia on the occasion of her marriage gave a large sum of money to be spent on the master of the Kaiser and Kaiserin Friedrich's Hospital for Children.

Some philosepher advances the idea that a woman who does not marry and make some good man happy is likely to turn philanthropist and make some bad man unhappy.

The first one is in the form of a lily. The edge is worked in buttonhole short and long stitch and the outside out away. To work, select one skeip of the smallest size German cord and three shades of raspherry pink filo floss. Buttonhole the German cord around all the outline of the lily with one shade of pink silk. Inside this battonhole outline work a row of close long and short stitch on each petal.

there silence in heaven for even half a minute, when Mrs. Laura J. Eisenhuth, the newly elected state superintendent of the public schools in North Dekota, assumed the duties of her office. All gore well, and Superintendent Eisenhuth is administering her office with signal ability. Meantime 21 of the 44 states permit women to vote for school officers. In Kanese they have municipal suffrage. In Wyoming they have what they will soon have in every northern state—full suffrage. Wyoming will be honored above all the rest in the history of the emancipation of woman. In Kanese half the counties have women school superintendents. From county superintendent is only a step to state superintendent is only a step to state superminute, when Mrs. Laura J. Eisenbuth, superintendents. From county super-intendent is only a step to state super-intendent, and that step has already been taken by Laura Eisenhuth. In 1894 in Kansas a constitutional amend-ment will be voted on to strike out the word "male" from the qual-ifications for citizenship. Perhaps Kansas will be the first state to range Kansas will be the first state to range herself alongside of Wyoming. As many as 20 women speakers took part in the last presidential campaign. New York will hold a constitutional convention in 1894, and, according to the law, some of the delegates to it must be women. The question of giving suffrage to women will come up before the convention drafting the new constitution. The members may as well adopt that provision. Unless they do part of their work will have to be done over again before five years. The word "male" must follow the word "white" into the exploded superstitions of the past. Liberty is as the word "white" into the exploded ex-persitions of the past. Liberty is as good for woman as it was for the white and black male. It has been predicted that we men from Kanass and Wyoming will at as members of the Fifty-fifth congress If not then, they will soon after. Whatever your work is, no matter how humble, do it the best that it can be done, in hope and in faith. Do not fretor grow impatient because it is humble, or in your judgment not worthy of your abilities. Know this for certain—if you have ability for great work and high work, that work will come to you in due time. But first all must serve and do little work in a great and high way. a great and high way.

Another ever broadening field for women's work is that of teaching phys-ical culture. Universal attention is be-ing paid to it, and that girls' school which has no gymnasium and no teach-er of physical culture is away behind the times. The devotion to physical culture among women is shown in the constantly increasing number of tall, fine, strong girls and women one meets on the street and elsewhere. It certainly appears to me that the girl of today is taller and larger than the girl of 20 years MEO WEA.

Virginia, the mother of presidents, has not a woman suffrage society.

A mother would die for her child and do far more for it than a father would in a majority of cases, yet in only six states has the mother equal rights with the father in the guardianship of her children. This is one of the cruelest provisions of our civilized law.

It is quite out of fashion for women to about women is a person to beware of. The Association of Working Girls' So-cieties deserves all praise for much that it has done, but for nothing more than for organizing the Choral union. The object of this union is to give a thorough course in reading music to all working girls who desire it. The union has already given some concerts. Few of the young ladies had any knowledge of music at the start, yet many of them are learning rapidly to sing music from the notes at sight. It is a noble undertak-ing.
